

I feel that the FCC should not allow LPFM stations to take priority over current FM translator service. I currently listen to KLOVE and would hate to see it replaced with another station. Here in rural Colorado, we do not have many choices in stations here and enjoy the positive and encouraging message KLOVE gives to me and my family. I have a 13 year old son and as a family we listen only to KLOVE and he is able to share with his friends to this station instead of other local programming. I feel that KLOVE does have it's place in our community and an alternative to programming that is not always appropriate to listen to. KLOVE is always family friendly and we do not want to lose it to a LPFM. Thank you for your attention to my comment.
